THE judgment of the Court of Appeal at Saigon in the case of the Bank of China, Japan, and the Straits, Lamited, v. E. L. LEPISSIER, which was reproduced in our columns a few days ago, is one of some importance, both from a leneral point of view and as specially affecting the position of the Bink and its shareholders. It may be useful to briefly recall the fasts of the case. M. Listissien was a shareholder in the Bank, but sold his shares. The shares, however. transferred, and remained his name. Subsequently calls were made and M. Liepessen's name being still-ou the register the Bank asked him to pay M. What the court said was in effect that unless an English company had complied with all the minutie of French company law-which of course no English company possibly could do-it could not recover calls from French shareholders. That judgment of the hospitals :has been appealed against, but the appeal has not yet been decided. The judgment of the U.S. Consular Court was cited before the Court of Appeal at Saigon; but the Court did not adopt the view of the American Judge. The bad management of the finances of the Bank, the violation of the articles of association, and the loss of n part of the capital, even if established. would not, the Court said, ralieve shareholders of their liability to pay the calls made, but could only serve as lution of the company. This is common scuse and good law. Shareholders who think dissolution advisable may take what stops they may be advised to bring it about, but there can be no doubt that the courts of law to which the shareholders may be respectively subject, whether English or foreign, will hold that the shareholders are liable, to the extent of the uncalled capital, to meet the obligations incurred by month before use. It is ontilled, although its publishers may not care to draw particular attention to that feature. 40 recognition as containing between its boards a siver number of lies than any other volume ever published. The reason is this, that it contains advertisements of hundreds of London and thousands of provincial and colonial papers, each of which has the largest circulation of its class and in its district and half a diseas or more the largest circulation in the world, and each is admitted to be the very best advertising medium in existence. But indeneudent of these the editor gives his own lists at periodicals of all kinds, admirably arranged in several tables, alphabetically and by localities, subjects, sto, with the requisite partionlars, and these may be taken as quite unbiased. It ben been edited for the last thirty-seven yours by Mr. Walter Wellsman, F.R.S.L., who has been connected with it for fifty years. We may mention, as going to prove bow certain faculties are indicated by the countenance, that Mr. Wellsman's portrait might easily be mistaken for that of the genial face of one of the leading financiers f Hongkong, a gentleman who bought a local business about twenty wears ago and soon ertended its ramifications to almost every town in China and whose first now conducts successfully several enterprises which others failed to make profitable. Advertisement contracting is a business which has grown; even more rapidly than newspapers themselves, and those of the old firms which have; like the older papers, say The Morning Post and The Times, kept page with the march of modern improvement are the best and safest to do business with. The present lasus convinces us. after a very careful examination, that this, the first, is still far the best and most correct work of the kind. This is almost processarily the case with publications of the nature of indexes, from Kelly's Post Office Directories or The Chronicle and Directory for China, Japan, etc., downwards. They have the organization and the experience and consequently can always knep ahead of their younger rivals. The portion of the book referring to home papers is certainly wouderfully well up to date, but we much doubt if that relating to foreign and colonial papers is, as the editor says, " absolutely unique and unapproachable." There is displayed in it the usual imperfect knowledge, of geography so characteristic of Englishmen; Chius and Japan, including Hongkong, " the second largest port in the world." is allotted less than a page, yet combined they are surely more important than Bechunusland, Tasmania, or British Guiana.
